I am currently working at PTEPreparation.com helping test-takers pass the PTE Academic exam. In my free time, I like to play soccer or visit the beach. I am taking this exam as part of the visa requirement to assess my English language.

Speaking – Describe Image:

Describe image template

Introduction:

The given image provides a comprehensive overview of “.....”

Main Body:

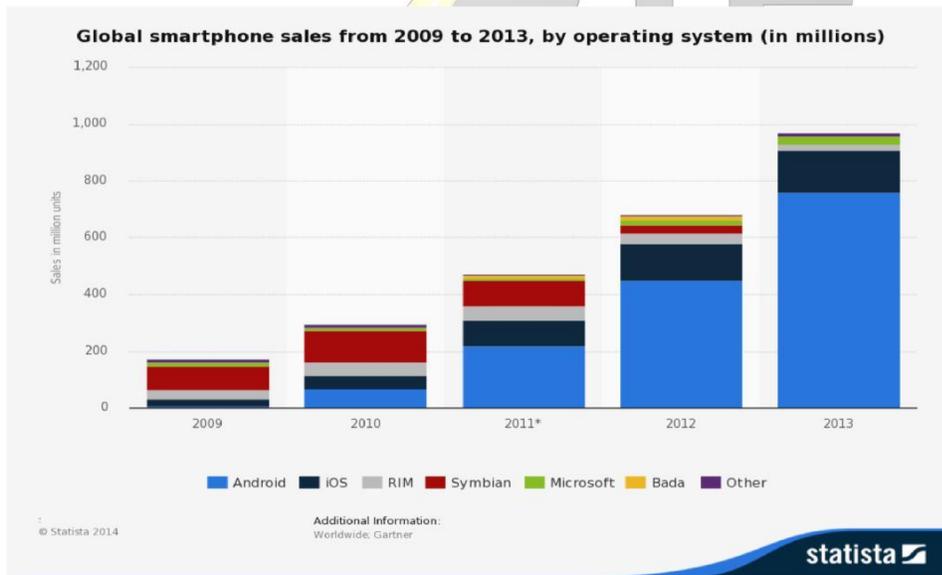

Upon closer examination/inspection, we can see that, “.....”

Conclusion:

In conclusion, this is a very informative/useful graph that tells us about “.....”

Completed example:

Let's discuss the following image as an example

Describe image template example:

The given image provides a comprehensive overview of global smartphone sales by operating system from 2009 to 2013. Upon closer examination, we see that, 2013. The biggest winner was by far Android. In 2009 the number of smartphones sold with Android was negligible but by 2013 it was close to 800 million and dwarfed the other operating systems. In second place, for instance was iOS with a less than 200 million. The biggest loser over the studied period was Symbian. In 2009 most smartphones were sold with Symbian but by 2013 it had completely disappeared. In conclusion, this a very informative graph that tells us about, how volatile the smartphone operating system market is.

Steven's Note:

Note that this is an ideal answer. You do not need to be as precise on content when you are speaking. Your answer can be relatively simple and straightforward. Keep the focus on fluency and elimination of pauses/hesitations. More structures available my Ebook and full Video Course.

Speaking – Retell lecture:

Retell lecture template

Introduction:

The lecture was a brief discussion on the subject of.....

Main body:

Another clearly important point covered in the conversation/talk was....

Conclusion:

It can be understood from this conversation/talk....

Example:

Let's take the below sample lecture:

I love sports and I like playing sports, games playing games and whenever you know or hear about or think about cheating. I think most of us say oh you know the knee jerk response you say its terrible. Like people shouldn't cheat and shouldn't break the rules. But I got thinking about it and sometimes when I read the sport session the newspaper particularly seems like three quarters of the article about some version of cheating. Either contractually or performance enhancing or trying to gain some advantage on the other side of the rules and I got thinking you know. Maybe we actually like it that way, cheating is just like the heighten version of wanting to win really really badly. So in a way I kind a admirer the people who cheat to win. Cheating to lose is different and we punish no one more then people who throw a game, cheating to loose is really hitting the line. Cheating to win, I think we kinda get it, we say that even if it Alex Rodrigues, he lives in New York. He when from being one of the, he is still one of the most famous athletes in the last 50 years. But went from being revealed from a unbelievable talent, to one of the most despised athletics. He cheated over and over again, kept lying about it, kept getting caught in a hand handed way. Even so you kinda have to respect someone who wants so badly to win and do better that they are willing to give themselves human growth hormones. So in that way, I kinda think that cheating is like something that we route for a little bit. We get it, we identify it a little bit.

Sample answer with template:

The lecture was a brief discussion on the subject of how people think about cheating in sports. Another clearly important point covered in the talk was that people are obsessed with cheating and in a way, it's respected because we respect that an athlete is so dedicated to winning that they are willing to cheat to do it. If people cheat to lose, however, they are undoubtedly punished severely. This proves that our emphasis is on the winning aspect of cheating. As a concluding remark, it can be firmly established that even though we know it's wrong, people secretly cheer for and support cheaters because secretly we respect their drive to win.

Steven's Note: Again, keep the focus on speaking fluently and eliminating pauses. More structures available my Ebook and full Video Course.

Filled Essay template example

Question: One in 100 people worldwide are now displaced from their homes and 2015 saw a record 1.3 million asylum seekers to Europe. To what extent should countries accept or reject refugees?

These days, there is an ongoing debate among people about television and if it should be viewed as a positive or negative impact to society. While it is possible to claim that television provides a source of entertainment to people, my view is that the disadvantages outweigh the advantages. In this essay, I shall explain my point of view by analysing both sides of the argument.

There are several reasons why Television is considered to be disadvantageous to society. One of them is that viewing of television can be a source of distraction in our lives, turning away our focus from the more important things in life. It can also be argued that we tend to waste hours in front of the television instead of working on our goals and ambitions in life. It should also be taken into account that children at a young age spending too much time in front of the television. For example, some people spend all their free time in front of the television instead of working on productive activities.

Making your dreams come true

Those who argue for television have a different view and say that it can actually be a good thing. Firstly, it is claimed that Television can be a good source of information to learn new things if used correctly. Then, there are concerns about people not viewing television to be unaware of current events and latest news around the world.

While there are strong arguments on both sides of the case, my personal opinion is that television usage is best avoided or minimized as we should focus on other productive tasks instead. I would strongly recommend that people view how much time they currently spend on watching television and see how this time can be put to better use.

Steven's note: Your score also depends on how well you fill in the blanks with content. You also need to take care of grammar, vocabulary and spellings while completing this structure to do well. There are two more Essay templates for 'Agree/disagree' and 'Problem/solution' essay types in my Ebook and full Video Course.

Listening section – Summarize spoken text

Template 1 :

- The given lecture talks in considerable details about
- Another clearly important point is
- This leads to the conclusion

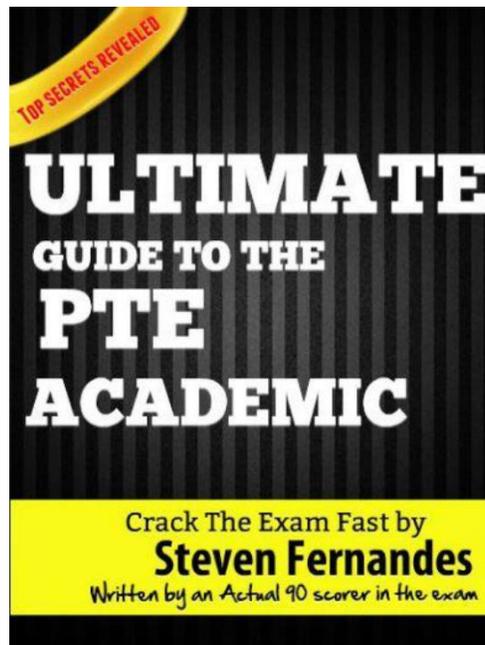

Steven's note: You don't really need a structure for this. I don't recommend using one unless you struggle to come up with grammatically correct sentences while writing.
